6. NEW BUSINESS:

A. POST HURRICANE DISCUSSION

Captain Scott Steiner, Pinellas County Sheriff's Department Disaster Coordinator, advised he has been with the Sheriff's Department for 35 years.

Captain Steiner stated the "bad news" is that all of us have chosen to live in this beautiful State of Florida, which is surrounded by water, three bridges and one road running north and south with traffic, which makes us very vulnerable when storms and hurricanes threaten the area. He further stated the last direct hit for this area was in 1928, however he pointed out the damage sustained from Elena, a no-name storm and Hurricane Charley in 2004, which if it had directly hit this area the clean-up would still be going on today.

Captain Steiner addressed the process of the Disaster Advisory Committee, which includes the involvement of the beach Mayors, and the Committee's recommendation to the Board of County Commissioners as to whether there should be a voluntary or mandatory evacuation.

Captain Steiner reported on the importance of a "mandatory evacuation", which saves lives and as required by law if someone refuses to evacuate they can be arrested.

Captain Steiner outlined the scenario should a Category 3 or 4 hurricane hit this area, it would result in the catastrophic failure of buildings and bridges, loss of power, road damage and loss of life due to tidal surge.

Captain Steiner stated the “good news” is that the areas emergency management, firefighters and leadership realize this is the number one threat, and have planned for this event, pointing out that each citizen as well needs to have a plan to evacuate to friends or leave early, as there are not enough shelters to handle all of the population.

Captain Steiner requested all Mayors to help get the message to citizens to have a plan should the area get hit hard, as the first 24 to 72 hours there will be massive confusion, and search and rescue teams will be in the hardest his areas, pointing out there would be curfews and later an organized re-entry process. Captain Steiner reported that all State, local and private commercial must be compliant with the National Incident Management System (NIMS), by October 2007.

Captain Steiner concluded by stating he hopes everyone recognizes the threat and takes it seriously, advising you will see the Pinellas County Sheriff’s Department and Police Officers shoulder to shoulder assisting, pointing out the need for the leadership of the BIG-C.

7. MISCELLANEOUS

A. Legislative Update.

Senator Jones stated he had served on the Insurance Committee after Hurricane Andrew, noting it was quite an experience seeing nothing but slabs of concrete left on the ground.

Senator Jones reported there would be one more Delegation meeting on January 4, 2007, and at the last meeting he had made a Motion that bills be presented to the legislature unless they have a House and Senate sponsor.

Senator Jones further reported he knew many people were hoping for a Special Session in December for the insurance and tax issues, however the direction Governor Bush is going will be different than Governor elect Crist will be going, so the session will probably be in January, and advise everyone not to anticipate a total cure at that time, as they will try and clear up some deficiencies, and during session try to totally fix problems.

Senator Jones advised of serious changes after the last election, as there will be a Democratic House, and there will be no advocate in power to secure Federal funds, and commended the cities for giving funds to the FSBPA.

Senator Jones stated it would be a learning curve with the transition as the new Governor put his team together and they adapt to new personnel, as there will be a different direct and priorities than the Bush administration.

Senator Jones reported the walking bridge is now open to the trail, and next fall will be opening on the South side.

Councilor Bill Smith, Indian Shores, asked Senator Jones if the legislature is going to repeal the law they passed that would cause Citizens' Insurance to charge another 60% increase.

Senator Jones responded stating the State should not be in the insurance business, and they need to find a formal fix to bring the industry back into the State.

B. MISCELLANEOUS

Mayor Ockunzzi reported Indian Rocks Beach Boat Parade would be on Sunday night.

Mayor Lawrence reported he had sent an e-mail requesting input on presentations for future meetings, and invited all to give input on what kind of programs and information they want to take away from the meeting, and announced Indian Shores' Boat Parade will be on December 17, 2006.

Mayor Queen announced there would be no meeting in December, however there would be a very important meeting in January at Redington Shores, as Steve Spratt, County Administrator, would be attending to address the Penney for Pinellas.

Mayor Armstrong reported Sunday they would have their tree lighting from 4 to 6 PM, with a Choir and Salt Rock providing chowder.

Commissioner Wolbert reported they would have their Boat Parade on December 2, 2006, advised they started a Crime Watch Group in Crystal Island and are looking for tips from everyone, and noted the Telecommunications Committee has no progress report as yet.
